CBD FOR PETS

The Ontario College of Veterinarians forbids their Vets from discussing cannabis with their clients at all, despite the universal acceptance by Vets that CBD, administered properly, can dramatically minimize chronic pain, reduce seizures and improve overall quality of life.

The question remains, how does one get their beloved pet proper CBD to help them without risking harm.

A couple of warnings before moving ahead:

- THC found in normal marijuana can hurt your pet as it is toxic to your pet.
- Pets need the CBD in marijuana but not the THC.
- Many illegal dispensaries sell CBD oil and say it contains no THC, but there is more than enough THC in the oil to hurt your pet.
- Online CBD products often have no CBD, there is no testing or verification of their products and many of them are scams.

In Canada, we have the benefit of government regulated pharmaceutical grade medical cannabis. Licensed Producer's produce medical grade CBD pure oil perfect for dealing with your pet's pain or tremors.

So how do I get it for my pet you ask?

Right now Vets can't help you, but we can. Your pet suffering pain causes you anxiety and makes sleeping difficult. You can get a medical prescription for your anxiety and use 'some' of it to help your pet. There is no law against giving a helpful plant to your pet.

We have you covered. Call us for more information.
